21.9 Lenders, who are assessed by the Organizer as inexperienced investors, are subject to a pre-contractual reflection period. During the pre-contractual reflection period, the prospective Lender, who is assessed as an inexperienced investor, may at any time withdraw his offer to invest in a particular business Loan without giving a reason and without any sanctions.

21.10 In cases where the Lender, who is assessed as an inexperienced investor, uses the Automatic investment tool, as provided for in Section 19 of this Agreement, the pre-contractual reflection period applies only to the initial investment authorization granted to the Organizer, and not to each investment in each specific Loan, performed in accordance with the aforementioned authorization.

21.11 The pre-contractual reflection period starts from the moment when the prospective Lender, who is assessed as an inexperienced investor, submits an offer to invest in the Loan, and ends after 4 calendar days.

21.12 Upon cancellation of the submitted offer to invest in a business Loan during the pre-contractual reflection period, the funds of such Lender will be returned to the Consumer's Paysera account opened on behalf of this Lender. From the moment of cancellation of the offer to invest in the Loan, such Lender will no longer participate in the financing of the relevant business Loan, i.e. will not receive a potential financial benefit from such a Loan.

21.13 At the end of the pre-contractual reflection period, it will be considered that the Lender has not used the benefits provided by the pre-contractual reflection period to withdraw its offer to invest in the business Loan without any sanctions or the like.

21.14 It should be noted that provisions 21.9 - 21.13 of the Agreement are applicable only in cases where the Lender invests in business Loans, i.e. Loans that are intended to satisfy business interests. The aforementioned provisions do not apply when the Lender invests in Consumer Loans and/or Loans related to real estate mortgage.

21.15 Provisions set forth in paragraphs 6.21 - 6.27 are not applicable to activities related to crowdfunding.
